PROFILE

Lisa is an experienced advocate who practices primarily in the areas of criminal law and quasi-criminal law, including disciplinary tribunal proceedings, regulatory matters, public law and inquests.

Lisa appears in all areas of criminal law across all jurisdictions. She has experience in a broad range of indictable criminal matters including homicides, sexual offences, drug matters and violent offences. She has appeared unled in trials before the County Court and as junior counsel in trials before the Supreme Court.

In her public law practice, Lisa appears and advises on human rights and discrimination cases. She holds a Master of Public and International Law from the University of Melbourne. Her study focused on human rights including the rights of accused in criminal proceedings, refugees, children and indigenous groups. She has undertaken legal internships at both the Louisiana Capital Assistance Centre in New Orleans and Hagar Cambodia.

Prior to coming to the Bar, Lisa was a Managing Principal Solicitor in Advocacy at the Office of Public Prosecutions as well as working as a Solicitor Advocate in defence firms in both regional Victoria and Melbourne. She also worked as an in-house Solicitor to the Deputy State Coroner and has particular interest and in-depth knowledge of the coronial process.

Lisa is a participant in the 2022/2023 Victoria Legal Aid Trial Counsel Development Program.
