PROFILE

Travis provides clear and accurate advice to allow clients to make fully informed decisions. He welcomes briefs to advise or appear, and often works with corporate and government solicitors directly.

Travis appears in all jurisdictions in trials and appeals, across a broad range of commercial and public law fields. He conducts litigation strategically to achieve the best commercial results, recognising when resolving the problem will be better than winning an argument.

In several proceedings in corporations and administrative law, Travis appeared for the successful party in changing the law by overturning established authority.

Through his experience in cases involving equitable issues, Travis is skilled at deploying equity in commercial disputes.

Travis' clarity of thinking and persuasive legal reasoning are well-suited to appeals. He is often briefed to appear in appeals.

Travis read with Samantha Marks QC (as she then was), and has had one reader, Reiko Okazaki.

Other Languages

After studying Chinese language, history and culture in Melbourne for 10 years, including Chinese legal translation at the University of Melbourne, Travis travelled to China to enhance his language skills. Travis lived in Beijing for one year while studying Chinese language at Beijing Normal University.

Travis has acted for several Chinese clients using his language skills and cultural understanding.
